I am an artist, and paint primarily with oil on canvas. My works are of surreal/abstract nature but not limited to these two styles as such.

These two styles allow me to explore the intangible and express them in a somewhat tangible form. Sometimes, what I create is premeditated i.e. a result of contemplation, sketching and planning; while other times, I simply start creating with no idea or general direction and go wherever the process takes me. Most of the time, it is a mixture of both.

For me, art should be a reflection of the human soul. Something which allows the viewer to be meditative, and delve deeper into their own self. This mirror could be an idea, object, form or something as simple as a texture/color.
